

University of Cambridge

Libraries Directory

Printed on February 10, 2012

Introduction

This Directory contains information about the libraries of the University of Cambridge and other institutions associated with the University. Each entry contains contact information and in some cases includes details of opening hours and special collections.

The information in this Directory is also available online at:

http://www.lib.cam.ac.uk/libraries_directory/libraries_directory.cgi.

This printed version is updated from the online version every night. While opening hours etc. should be accurate, it may be advisable to check with libraries before visiting, particularly if making a long journey.

Visitors to libraries are advised to contact the relevant librarian and obtain permission to use the library and register (if required) before consulting the collections. Where details of services are included it should be noted that these are generally available only to members of the department, faculty, college or organisation concerned. Colleges are autonomous, private institutions and their libraries are not open to all members of the University or to the general public.

All telephone numbers (unless otherwise indicated) given in the Directory have the area code for Cambridge, 01223. The (3) preceding most numbers should be used by callers not on the University telephone network. The University's telephone number is (01223) (3)37733 (Access code 100 on the University network).
